GAS MASKS BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN Director

Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—The army gas mask is proving an extremely versatile bit of peace time equipment. A vaudeville comedian facetiously uses a gas mask to protect himself against the hot air of his fellow comedian; while in a more serious way, the worker in a match factory renders himself invulnerable to deadly chlorine fumes by wearing an army mask. Chlorine departments all over the country are making tests to see if the chemicals contained in the canisters of the army mask can be used to fumes against which firemen must

Not long ago an engineer wrote to the chemical warfare service of the war department, asking that a gas mask be sent him at once. He was in danger of losing his position, he said, because he was growing old and could not stand the smoke which flooded the engine cab whenever the train started through a tunnel. The mask was sent, and the engineer wrote the war department that it saved him his position. Other engineers have since bought masks for the same purpose.

A novel use of a gas mask was made recently by a New York society woman. This subtle-clad matron stepped from her limousine into the New York office of the chemical warfare service and demanded a gas mask. When asked why she wanted it, she explained that she had just returned from Palm Beach and opened her New York house, and that moths were positively eating up her clothes and house furnishings. Her butler, ordered to fumigate, had used a large quantity of formaldehyde and a dozen sulphur candles. He sprayed formaldehyde all over the house, and lighted the three dozen candles. The fumes were so strong that it was impossible to stay in the house, and the woman had hurried after a gas mask in order to have some one open the windows.

Her footman, who mask provided, entered the house without being at all affected by the fumes. The overpowering strength of the gases was shown by the fact that the woman's pet cat and parrot were all found dead in the house.

The war department had over 5,500,000 gas masks manufactured, and shipped 4,000,000 to the army. Great quantities were used and worn out. Every soldier who was sent abroad is entitled to keep his mask, or if he turned it in before leaving the army, he can have it replaced by writing to the office of the director of storage, war department, Washington, D. C. As over 2,000,000 of our soldiers went overseas, this order disposes of a greater part of the surplus mask supply.

Masks Used to Public. Some of the unused masks and canisters will be kept for the army, though the chemicals will not retain their power for much more than a year, even if kept in a dry atmosphere. The war department is now disposing of the surplus to the public at the rate of $5 for the mask, $1 for a used one, and $1 each for extra canisters. The used masks, which are now not in condition to afford protection against gases, are sold as souvenirs to prevent any one from attempting to use them in a poisonous atmosphere where the war department fits the face pieces before putting the used masks on good new masks so far have been sold, largely to firms and manufacturers. The war department's record of sales shows that a wide range of industries have purchased masks for use in their experimental purposes or to be put into immediate use. Among the purchasers are factories making ink, paper, explosives, chemicals, fertilizers, and other products. The war department demands that prospective purchasers be given the mask to use to which the mask is to be put. It can then inform the buyer as to whether the army mask will be satisfactory.

Combats Poison Gas. To understand the prospects of the gas mask in industry it is necessary to recall the composition of the army mask. The idea seems to be prevalent that the army gas mask is a protection against any kind of smoke or gas. As a matter of fact, the army mask (Continued on page 2.)

RAILROAD STRIKE IN WEST, IS IMPROVED

Washington, Aug. 28.—Improvement in the strike situation on the Pacific coast was reported today, as the railroad administration and unions began moving out of Oakland, but so far traffic at Los Angeles still is tied up.

LURE OF BARGAINS BRINGS CROWDS TO CITY FOR DOLLAR DAY

Dollar Day Sidelights

Not a riot, not a movie "mob" scene, "Just Dollar Day." Long before the opening of the stores this morning a dense line of shoppers clamored at the doors for admittance. Frantic merchants tried in vain to curb the crowd. No use, they jostled and pushed, made grabs at merchandise. Every store was packed to capacity.

Every train brought a host of shoppers from the surrounding towns. Folks from out of town met their friends in the thickest of the fray and under the stress of the day, stopped their fitting scene to exchange conversation, and perhaps tip them off to some better bargain.

Outside of the stores older children patiently wheeled their baby in a stroller or sister back and forth. Dollar day has become an institution in Janesville.

BOER LEADER IS VICTIM OF FLU

Pretoria, Union of South Africa, Aug. 28.—General Louis Botha, premier and minister of agriculture, died today following an attack of influenza. Botha was born at Greytown, Natal, in 1863, and was a member of the Transvaal government, in which he represented the District of Vryheid. At the beginning of the Boer war in 1899, he was elected commandant of the Transvaal. He soon rose to high command. He was in charge of the Boer forces at the battles of Colenso and Spionkop. In the latter battle, he was captured by the British. He was released by the British in 1901.

Following the peace negotiations between the Boers and the British, General Botha took a leading role in the period of reconstruction. At the outbreak of the great war in 1914, General Botha took command of the Boer forces in southwest Africa, achieving a complete success and compelling the German troops in that region to surrender.

SEN. LA FOLLETTE ATTACKS MONOPOLIES OF NATURAL FIELDS

Washington, Aug. 28.—Renewing his attack against monopolistic control of the natural resources of the country, Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, warned the senate today against undue haste in passing pending legislation which would transfer the control of the public lands to the federal government.

The Wisconsin senator declared that in the past there had been a constant struggle between the pillagers, pirates and thieves and the government over the development of timber and grazing lands in the west, and that the same situation had developed over oil lands. He said he would support a measure that would provide for the government taking control over the operating "many of the basic things necessary to the life of the citizen," adding that it was beyond the power of congress or any one to restrict "the nationalization of transportation."

U. S. POLICE FORCES IN TURKEY URGED

Paris, Wednesday, Aug. 27.—British troops began leaving the Caucasus region August 15, and will all be out of the region by the end of the month. The British government is urging the United States to send troops to relieve them. Mr. Arnold, director of the American commission for relief in the Caucasus, said today upon his return to Paris from London. While at the British capital he interviewed Viscount Peel, under secretary of war, who told him that the British government was determined to retain troops in Armenia unless the United States should give assurance that it would send troops to relieve them.

INCREASE IN BIRDS

London.—One part of the population of all rearing has increased. When the winter was over the birds were whittled down to the smallest company known since 1882. The frosts had killed both native birds and winter migrants. Today the country is swarming with native birds. The nesting season was ideal. Fruit growers, suffering from caterpillars, are hailing with delight the advent of the birds.

FORGING AHEAD.

Few citizens of Wisconsin, except those who come in personal contact with field workers and others connected with the state agricultural college, and experimental station realize the great strides that have been made in placing the state in the foremost ranks of producers of high grade dairy and live stock, grains and fruits. Wonders have been accomplished by the experimental station, the extension bureau and other departments of the agricultural college despite the fact that efforts have been somewhat handicapped because of lack of support by the legislature. For several years the legislature has shown a decided inclination to curtail appropriations to the university, and this naturally has had an effect upon the agricultural college. Why this should be the face of facts which disclose that Wisconsin is one of the greatest agricultural states, is difficult to understand.

But even though limited to an extent, the college has extended the reputation of Wisconsin to every section of the union and the results of an endeavor to raise the standard of its stocks through encouraging the raising of pure-bred livestock and pure grain seeds are shown in the confidence buyers of the best in these lines have in our products. The following statement indicates the regard Wisconsin is given, and was made by a recent visitor from another state:

"I am convinced that there are very good reasons why Wisconsin is a leader not only in the production of dairy products, but also in such branches of farming. Main among these is the splendid work done by your agricultural institutions and organizations. Although I am fairly familiar with the work done in a number of other states, I know of no other in which there is such agricultural teamwork."

Such a statement means that the farmers appreciate the work done by the college and other organizations and co-operate in every way to raise the standard of Wisconsin products. The men employed by the state could not make much headway unless the farmers were progressive and took advantage of the opportunities offered them. This progressiveness has produced the antecurators, returns which have been ours.

Wisconsin is becoming one of the leading fruit orchards of the country; it is now leading as a dairy state; its Guernsey herds top the list in the union and it is giving New York state a close run for place in developing Holstein herds. It leads the nation and world in the production of pure-bred seed grains.

All Wisconsin's rural activity has co-operated in bringing about these results. There are at present more than 30 major associations of farmers, in addition to dozens of auxiliary organizations which carry on the good work in various districts.

Perhaps one of the most interesting experiments which is showing splendid results is that of improving the quality of seed grains. The quality of small grains and forage plants for a time showed deterioration. When this condition was disclosed, several of the most progressive farmers banded themselves together for the purpose of growing and widely disseminating the pedigree seed which had been bred by the experimental station. Their efforts have been successful and as a result Wisconsin's reputation for pure-bred grains has been created.

This is but one illustration of the benefits received by this co-operation. The state is alive to its opportunities and each day adds to the list of progressive men who are reaping the harvest of careful and diligent experiment in all lines. All the agencies of the state are at the service of the settlers in the out-over sections in the northern part of Wisconsin as well as the farmers in the more thickly populated districts. Those who have not taken advantage of the opportunities freely offered and easily obtained will add to the general prosperity of the commonwealth by doing so.

INCREASED PRODUCTION.
Cutting down production, producing less food, less clothing, less fuel, never has, and never will reduce prices. Increased production is the answer to the question of how we can reduce living costs.

We must have production if we are going to have lower living costs. In modern industry production is stimulated by construction. Building is a basic industry. If you build a home you make business for more than a hundred correlated and contributing industries. Each building erected sends its wave of demand through the industrial organization, from the ditch diggers to the bank presidents and back, and by way of pay envelopes, to the ditch digger again.

Building activities will do more than any one thing to stimulate general business and accelerate the transition of industry from war demobilization to the peace normal. Construction stimulates production—it creates the demand—and production must increase until it reaches the volume of production necessary to decrease unit costs before prices are lower.

We of Janesville need buildings. We are building every day, but not enough. Banks are going up. Store buildings planned. Schools are in the making. Our hospital is to have a new addition. Over one hundred houses are in some stage of construction. But that is not enough. We can fill the houses over night. In fact most of them are sold now. The other buildings will be occupied as soon as the last finishing touch is added. We must build and build and build. In fact in the next few years BUILD is going to be one of the most popular words on every Janesville citizen's tongue. It is going to be constantly before his vision. It is going to haunt him almost day and night. He will be unable to get out from under the load of building responsibilities which will be placed upon him.

We have but only scratched the surface. We have done fairly well—but it is only a start. With a great factory being rushed to completion by an army of men and with the prospect of that factory being the working place of thousands of men who must have a place to live, the problem of building looms so much greater than any other single thing that it overshadows everything.

Knowing this situation confronts us and knowing that every building started means the circulation of wealth and the continuance of prosperity, there remains no argument for not meeting the emergency without hesitancy.

Republicans of both houses of congress have signified their intention to see through a determined campaign for a budget system to replace the archaic methods now followed for providing revenues and making appropriations. Republicans have advocated this reform for several years, but the democrats have been able to prevent action. Friends of the proposed legislation claim that it will save the country millions of dollars annually.

Attorney General Palmer declares that those liquor men who thought the eyes of the department of justice had been shifted to the high cost of living problem and as a consequence there would be a let-up on the campaign against illegal sale of intoxicants, are mistaken. He says the government will continue to be "up and at 'em." There's lots of material to work on.

Madison saloons have opened after being "dark" for two years. One of the first to tackle the 2.75 percent beer landed in police court and was fined for drunkenness. That shows that Madison imbibers are out of the picture. None of our best drinkers would admit that the alleged kickless fluid could get them into court.

President Wilson has declared his intention of starting on a speaking tour of the west to urge unreserved ratification of the peace treaty. It looks as though the president has a big job cut out for him if he hopes to convince most of our citizens that such a plan is desirable.

The value of newspaper advertising was visibly demonstrated today when hundreds of men and women from all sections of this part of the state came to Janesville to take advantage of Dollar Day. Merchants began doing business as soon as they opened their doors.

Acting Chief of Police Tom Morrissey is in earnest about checking up those people who have dogs and have not paid their licenses. One of those dogs Tom will start out on a crusade and fill the lockup with canines—or their owners.

News despatches today announce that living costs have taken a tumble. We hope the rumor is true, for many of us are going to need some extra change to buy overcoats.

THE BOOM IN BAY RUM.

The little island of St. Thomas, which the United States recently purchased from the Danish government, is chiefly famous for the production of bay rum. The bay leaves are raised on the adjacent island of St. John, and the rum is made on St. Thomas.

One of the first blessings of St. Thomas, after its transfer to the sovereignty of the United States, was prohibition. Along with prohibition came a greatly increased sale of bay rum, and about the same time it was widely rumored that a number of persons had been made ill by using bay rum internally.

One manufacturer of bay rum was made so indignant by this charge that he had his product analyzed by a chemist, and published the results in a local newspaper, proving conclusively that bay rum is just as harmless when applied to the lining of the stomach as when used on the scalp.

The editor of the opposition paper took issue with him, not on the ground that bay rum was poisonous, but contending that to drink this famous product was a violation of the most ancient traditions of the island. Bay rum had been produced on the island for over 200 years. It had never been drunk before, and even the most burning thirst was no justification for wasting bay rum by swallowing it.

But this conservative seems to be getting the worst of the argument. Most of the St. Thomasians find 45 percent bay rum a satisfactory substitute for 5 percent potent beer.

A Porto Rico paper observes "Bay rum booms where booze lies buried."

Q. What was Tolstoj's prophecy about the war? G. S.

A. Tolstoj predicted that "the great conflagration will start in 1912, set by lock of the first arrow in the countries of southeastern Europe—end of the great calamity will make a new political era for the world. There will be left but a few kingdoms, but the world will form a federation of united states, nations. There will remain only four great giants—the Anglo Saxons, the Latins, the Slavs and the Mongolians.

Q. How is the president of Panama selected? S. T.

A. The president of Panama is selected every four years by popular vote, every male citizen over 21 years being entitled to suffrage. There is no vice-president, and the president may not be re-elected.

Q. Do you know anything that will increase flesh? O. F.

A. We submit the following suggestive list of foods to increase weight: Butter, cream, olive oil, bacon, baked potatoes, well cooked cereals, well baked bread, chocolate, custard, milk, eggs, cream soups, cream toast, custards, apples, raisins, prunes, figs, dates, oranges. Much sleep, plenty of fresh air, normal living, and a consultation with a good physician in extreme cases, are suggested.

Q. How did America get its name? J. A. K.

A. America was named for Amerigo Vesputi, an Italian explorer. He claimed to have visited the new world four times with different exploring expeditions. The truth of his claim was never proven. America was suggested as a name for the new world by a geographer, in a treatise which he published in 1492.

Q. When was gas first used for lighting purposes in the United States? R. S.

A. The first gas light in the United States was installed by David Melville, Newport, R. I., in 1801. The first city to use illuminating gas successfully was Baltimore, in 1817.

Q. What is the smallest sum of money for which a person can sue? G. J.

A. Most states permit suit to be brought for one cent.

Q. What was the loss through the San Francisco earthquake? M. M.

A. In the San Francisco earthquake of April 18, 1906, 452 lives were lost. The estimated amount of property lost was $350,000,000. Over 5,000 buildings were destroyed and 453 blocks burned.

Q. Is there any remedy for poison ivy? W. V.

A. The United States public health service suggests bathing with salt water, sea water being best. Boric acid, one teaspoonful in a glass of hot water, is a good application. The large blisters should be punctured and the contents allowed to run out. Every day or two affected patches should be bathed in warm water, carefully dried without rubbing, and the boric acid treatment applied.

Q. Where is Jamaica and who owns it? M. O.

A. Jamaica is 90 miles south of Cuba in the Caribbean sea. It is an island of 10,990 square miles.

THE HAPPY GOALS.

Oh I have lived and I have loved and I have danced along.
Full many a day that I have known was honey-sweet with song;
I've journeyed where the roses bloomed, be-diamonded with dew,
And I have trod the troubled paths where tangled briars grew.
But now I thank the Lord above whose mercy's manifest,
For I have learned that care and grief make sweet our hours of rest.

Had I not fared the mountain side, had I not felt the rain,
Had I not struggled through despair the summit to attain
I should not know how sweet it is at evening's setting sun
To feel the thrill that comes to him who sees a duty done.
For who would come to happiness and rest where children play
Must bear the trials and the pain and heartache of the day.

The brightest eyes are those that shine though bitter tears they've wept,
The glances that are those which prove the faith which they have kept;
And he that wears the scars of grief

Begin Motor Care at the Right End

TINKERING and fussing under the hood can't cure the trouble and damage caused by indifference at the filling end of your car.

Poor, kerosene-and-carbon laden, mock motor fuel, seemingly cheaper at the moment of filling, turns out to be pretty dear economy when you reckon its score in terms of carbon clogged valves, wastage through over-wet mixture and the thinning of your lubricating oil to the danger point by drippings of kerosene.

True Gasoline 30^c Wadhams is "straight" run, genuine gasoline, chemically innocent of free carbon and kerosene. It vaporizes instantly and explodes—completely—at the faintest spark.

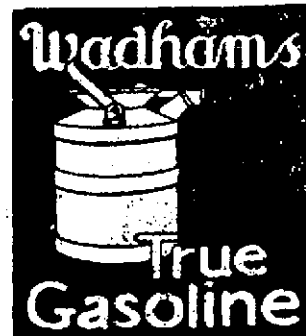

Its use is motor care of the highest type—prevention of trouble before it can happen.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am 41, nineteen years old and am going with a boy for very much. Am I old enough to know my own heart? How old should a person be before considering seriously the question of engagement?

(2) My friend's parents do not like me. Am I doing right in letting him come to see me? I think my future happiness depends on it.

(3) You may know your heart at nineteen but you are rather young to take the chance by marrying. I think a girl should be in her twenties and a man past twenty-five before taking a vital step as to become engaged or to marry.

(4) To be all right to let him come to see you even if his parents do not approve. He is the one to be satisfied.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are girls of nineteen, happily engaged to young men of our home town.

Recently our fiancés, during an extended vacation on the seashore, met a bunch of girls, attractive and very fascinating, at least they seemed to designate those young men to a certain extent.

On their return they seemed more than anxious to see us, yet have mentioned these girls more than we think necessary, in fact, on several occasions they raved over their beauty. We have no earthly reason to be jealous as they wrote us every night how much they loved us, and how much they loved the girls as well.

Do you think it possible that in so short a time these boys could cease to love us?

Well—all the while, said Bernard, a sudden note creeping into his voice: "You will have to economize." They said no more. The thunders and lightning passed. But at the same time the storm of steady cold rain went on falling, making things sadder, shrouding the little home in gloom.

To make matters worse, Bernard developed a determined viewpoint in the matter of spending his meager wage. He was not naturally niggardly, any more than Annie was by nature a shrew. But the continuing state of poverty caused strange spasms of the soul. Emotions got cross-crossed and out of their wonted current. Virtues begin to pass the virtue limit and become vices. Strange mixed motives appear.

At all events, Bernard took it into his head to open to his wife a daily sum which he judged adequate for the purchase of food. This sum was 65 cents a day for six days of the week and $1 for Sunday. He set aside $3.60 each week for the rent and allowed himself 60 cents for carfare and $1.20 for lunches. This left $1.80 weekly for the Carrolls' lotment of clothes and cost of living so far.

Had Annie been in normal mind she would have seen that it was about as fair an arrangement as could be worked out of Bernard's state of nerves and in a high-strung state of nerves and nursing still the pain of their recent quarrel, the mere idea of his daily high was abhorrent. She felt it to be high-handed and extravagant. She could not bear it. Her administrative capacities, it flunked in her sick mind.

Her love for Bernard became submerged in a feeling of outrage. That she should be so treated—she who to care for us?

We are not jealous; we just don't like it.

GOLD DUST TWINS. You are looking for trouble. Doubtless the young men care as much as ever for you, but you imagine a change in their regard. Stop worrying and take it for granted that they care for you. I think you will find that after they settle down into their routine life they will be just as devoted as they used to be.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you kindly print a remedy for blackheads? I work where it is very dirty and I have a great many.

H. J. K.
Have your druggist prepare the following lotions:
Green soap one and one-quarter ounces; alcohol, two and one-half drams; glycerine, two and one-half drams; borax, one and one-quarter drams.
Rose water, two and one-half drams; spirit of lavender, two and one-half drams; alcohol, two and one-half drams.
Every morning wash the skin with the first lotion and then rub in the second. Then wash off with warm water.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you consider a girl, past the age of sixteen, fortunate to have a boy friend, past the age of twenty, who would sacrifice anything as had or do anything that he possibly could do for her and for her pleasure?

PORTUNATE or UNFORTUNATE. She is fortunate to have someone love her so much. But I think it unfortunate for so young a girl to be cheated out of girlhood pleasures and have instead a love which should come to her in more mature years.

JET TRIMMING ON TRICOTINE FROCK IS UNIQUE IDEA

By ELOISE.

Never before has Paris been so utterly disregarded in the matter of fashion details. Paris says sleeves and skirts must be short and America does not hear, or at least does not heed, for even the newest frock is being shown in such a pleasant and winter stocks of many manufacturers show unusually long skirts and exceedingly narrow lines about the ankles. Here is a smart frock of the hour, but it is of such a simple design that it does not seem overdone. Georgette and lace combine to form a delicate collar and cuff set and a vestee. These plain one-piece frocks have been models for three seasons, but there still seems to be no falling off in the demands for them. They are practical and becoming, which are two of the most important features of any garment, and this one may be worn for street, business or informal entertainment and it makes an ideal traveling frock.

meats. Boil one quart of the berries with two cups of vinegar and one tablespoon of pickling spices tied in a muslin bag, for 20 minutes. Put through a press or sieve that will retain the seeds, add two cups of brown sugar and simmer for 10 minutes before bottling.

Elderberry Jelly—Three pounds of grain grapes or apples, three pounds of elderberries, sugar. Wash the fruit and remove from the stems and put in the preserving kettle. Add water to nearly cover the grapes. Wash the elderberries but do not remove from the stems. Place the berries on the grapes in the kettle and cook gently for 20 minutes.

Drain through a double thickness of cheese cloth, or a flannel jelly bag. Bring the juice to the boiling point, add the sugar, cook until it jellies, pour in sterilized jelly and when cool cover with paraffin. For every five cups of juice allow four cups of sugar.

Note: Any pulp left in the bag should be pressed through a colander and made into jam.

A WHOLESOME DISH. A wholesome supper dish of leak may be prepared in the following manner: Choose a dozen leaks about six inches in length, and, having washed and trimmed them, boil them in salted water until tender; drain them as dry as possible, and put them into a well-warmed vegetable dish. Pour over them salt made by melting one ounce of butter and stirring it into one ounce of flour.

Add half a pint of milk very slowly, stir until smooth, and boil up slowly, stirring all the time. Then add seasoning and a little more cheese and some bread crumbs, and bake in a quick oven for about eight minutes.

A Favorite Delicacy. I have lost considerable weight and am much run down with leucorrhea. Can you tell me anything to do for it? I have tried several tonics without success. (Miss F. M.)

ANSWER—Leucorrhea is merely a symptom, often of no significance, but it is indicative of any particular condition and therefore not amenable to any particular remedy or treatment. The idea that a tonic, what ever that may be, would be particularly helpful for a female or a male individual is positive humbug. Stop your nonsense, young lady, and consult your physician.

ELDERBERRY RECIPES. Spiced Elderberries—Chop the rind of a thick-skinned orange or lemon, cover it with water and boil until tender. Add the juice of the fruit, three cups of stemmed elderberries, one and one-half cups of sugar and one scant teaspoon of mixed spices; boil until thick. The lemon may be omitted and one tablespoon of vinegar used for each cup of berries.

Elderberry Pie—For a large pie allow three cups of berries, two tablespoons of lemon juice or vinegar, two tablespoons of flour, three-quarters cup of sugar and spices to taste. Bake in one crust with a lattice-work top.

Elderberry Sherbet—Pour one pint of weak vinegar over one quart of elderberries; let them stand for 24 hours, strain and pour the juice over a second quart of berries. Let these stand for 24 hours, strain again, add one cup of sugar to each cup of juice, boil it up, and can or bottle if wanted for future use.

DO YOU KEEP YOUR TOOLS SHARP?
The big thing about him is that he always keeps his tools well sharpened.

So said the Authorman in regard to a man we both admire. One might gather from that encomium that the man was a workman of some sort. As a matter of fact, he is a commercial traveler, and the Authorman meant by his "tools" his charm of manner and the pleasing appearance which have helped him to carve out a successful business career.

He is Not Good Looking but Appears So. And by keeping those tools sharp, the Authorman meant that he had kept them at their highest efficiency.

He is not, when you analyze him, a particularly good looking man, but he stands so straight, he is always well groomed and has such a pleasant and friendly smile, that his appearance gives an excellent impression.

As for his manner, he was shy by nature with the terrible shyness that tongue-tied; but he knew that he must overcome this if he was to succeed, and he has taught himself so perfect a poise, such a tact in listening just enough and saying just enough, that one can hardly discern the shy awkward boy of old days in this self-contained, gracious personality.

He Uses Every Ounce of Himself. I have heard another man who has also followed his career with interest say of him that he uses every ounce of himself. I don't know but what this is an even better way of putting it than the Authorman's. It strikes home more sharply.

So many of us think we could do great things if only we had beauty or a bigger opportunity in life or some distinct gift. But how do we know that we would have made good use of the beauty, the opportunity, the gift?

Yet Stevenson Said—Are we using every ounce of what is given us? Are we keeping the tools by which we have to carve out our careers as sharp as possible? One thinks of Stevenson as a man with a great literary gift, yet Stevenson once said (I quote from memory) "For people have done as much with so little gift as I."

Are you using every ounce of your self or are you getting half of what you might be, lie idle?

Your Grocer Has It!

Every grocer in this city is now supplied with LITTLE BOY BLUE, the better bluing. Better as a laundry bluing because it is always true blue and uniform in quality; always the same because it is manufactured by a remarkable process which insures uniformity. But is even more than a superior laundry bluing. It will help you in a thousand different ways in your daily household tasks. We mention here a few of its uses—you will discover many others after using your first bottle.

Little Boy Blue

1. LITTLE BOY BLUE is really better laundry bluing. A small quantity added to your rinsing water will make your clothes a snowy white, the envy of your neighbors.
2. Kid gloves and shoes will become whiter and more brilliant if a drop of LITTLE BOY BLUE is added to the cleaning solution.
3. Glassware, mirrors and windows will become clear and sparkling in clear water to which LITTLE BOY BLUE has been added.
4. Ivory and white woodwork which has become yellow will return to its original whiteness if a small quantity of LITTLE BOY BLUE is dropped into the water in which it is washed.
5. Many people use LITTLE BOY BLUE for tinting painted and kalsomined walls. Any shade of blue can be secured for this purpose.

6. LITTLE BOY BLUE is valuable for cleaning bath tubs, tile sinks and white enamel.
7. A few drops of this magic liquid will restore the color to your faded clothing, making your garments fresh and new.
8. LITTLE BOY BLUE will dye fabrics any shade from a dark to a baby blue.
9. LITTLE BOY BLUE will remove the shine and the shabby appearance from dark woolen clothing. Just moisten a piece of old muslin with the pure liquid, sponge and press with hot iron.
10. Gray and white haired people have found LITTLE BOY BLUE invaluable in washing their hair. A small quantity added to the rinsing water makes the hair pure white, fluffy and glossy.

The Most Economical Bluing

Besides being the most efficient bluing obtainable, LITTLE BOY BLUE is also the most economical. The regular two-ounce bottle is equal to two full quarts of ordinary bluing, which in itself is a saving of forty cents. In addition, LITTLE BOY BLUE is put in a patent bottle which absolutely prevents waste either by spilling or evaporation. You simply puncture the top of the bottle with a pin and use the bluing drop by drop.

At Your Grocer—10c

Go today to any grocer in this city and suburbs. Buy a bottle of LITTLE BOY BLUE and give it a trial. You will become enthusiastic over the superiority and economy of this wonder bluing.

HEREDITARY SYPHILIS

Formerly it was believed that a syphilitic child might be born of a healthy mother, the disease being inherited from syphilitic father. It is generally understood that a syphilitic father does not transmit syphilis directly to a child, but is responsible only because he has infected the mother with the disease.

The mother with a test of the mother's blood—although the mother may be apparently quite healthy. Still, a mother may have syphilis in a latent stage, and, after a considerable treatment, bear a perfectly healthy child.

It is in the period of three or four years following her infection, the period when the disease is still infectious, that the syphilitic mother is likely to bear children with hereditary syphilis. But the syphilitic woman is still more likely to miscarry.

Vigorous treatment of the syphilitic expectant mother may enable her to bear a normal child.

A child born with syphilis may appear robust and healthy at first, but is likely to be or to become presently thin, flabby and wasted, with the face of an old man, weakened, pinched, eyes bleary, nose snuffling, the cry rather a feeble, squawk, the abdomen distended and slight skin eruptions (skinny) about the mouth and buttocks unlike simple skin troubles commonly seen in healthy babies. This picture should be clearly distinguished from the picture of the poorly nourished (skinny) child with eczema, usually due to faulty diet.

In many cases hereditary syphilis does not manifest itself until the child is several years old, although the child is not as well developed as a normal child. Thus there may be a forward bowing of the shin bones (not a sideways bowing, as in rickets from dead food) or various other deformities or alterations in the development of the bones and the cutting and regularity of the permanent teeth. It must be remembered, however, that such abnormalities are ten times more likely to be due to mere faults of nutrition or hygiene than to syphilis.

We have no proof that syphilis is ever transmitted to the third generation, and, indeed, there is little reason to assume that such a thing ever occurs. The offspring of a person who has inherited syphilis, if there be any offspring, would probably be weak and poorly developed and short lived, because the parent is defective.

In spite of older opinions, it is now believed extremely improbable that hereditary syphilis would fail to manifest itself before the sixth year. When instances of inherited syphilis manifesting itself for the first time in adolescence or early adult life arise, the chances are that manifestations in infancy or childhood have been forgotten or ignored or not recognized. Syphilis is such a protean disease, with so many and various manifestations, that it is ignored or mistaken for other conditions every day.

The Magnificent Ambersons

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"I'd like to have—seen him. Just once."

A superstitious person might have thought it unfortunate that Fanny's partner in speculative industry as in Wilbur's disastrous rolling-mills was that charming but too hazy-headed man of the world, George Amberson. He was one of those optimists who believe that if you put money into a great many enterprises one of them is sure to turn out a fortune, and therefore, in order to find the lucky one, it is only necessary to go into a large enough number of them.

"You ought to have thought of my record and stayed out," he told Fanny, one day the next spring, when the affairs of the headlight company had begun to look discouraging. Things do look bleak, and I'm only glad you didn't go into this confounded thing to the extent I did."

Miss Fanny grew pink. "But it must go right!" she protested. "We saw with our own eyes how perfectly it worked out in the shop. It simply—"

"Oh, you're right about that," Amberson said. "It certainly was a perfect thing—in the shop!"

"But think of that test on the road when we—"

"That test was lovely," he admitted. "The inventor made us happy with his oratory, and you and Frank Bronson and I went whirling through the night at a speed that thrilled us. We must never forget it—and we never shall. It cost—"

"But something must be done," he said. "It must indeed! My something would seem to be leaving my watch at my uncle's. Luckily, you—"

The pink of Fanny's cheeks became deeper. "But isn't that man going to do anything to remedy it? Can't he try to—"

"He can try," said Amberson. "He is trying, in fact. I've sat in the shop watching him try for several beautiful afternoons."

"But you must make him keep on trying!"

"Oh, yes. I'll keep sitting!" However, in spite of the time he spent sitting in the shop, worrying the inventor of the fractious light, Amberson found opportunity to worry himself about another matter of business. This was the settlement of Isabel's estate.

"It's curious about the deed to her house," he said to his nephew. "You're absolutely sure it wasn't among her papers?"

"Mother didn't have any papers," George told him. "None at all. All she ever had to do with business was to deposit the checks grandfather gave her, and then write her own checks against them."

"The deed to the house was never recorded," Amberson said thoughtfully.

ly. "I've been over to the courthouse to see. I think it would be just as well to get him to execute one now in your favor. I'll speak to him about it."

George sighed. "I don't think I'd bother him about it; the house is mine, and you and I understand that it is. That's enough for me, and there isn't likely to be much trouble between you and me when we come to settling poor grandfather's estate. I've just been with him, and I think it would only confuse him for you to speak to him about it again. I notice he seems distressed if anybody tries to get his attention—he's a long way off, somewhere, and he likes to stay that way. I think—I think mother wouldn't want us to bother him about it; I'm sure she'd tell us to let him alone. He looks so white and queer."

Amberson shook his head. "I won't bother him any more than I can help; but I'll have the deed made out ready for his signature."

"I wouldn't bother him at all. I don't see—" "You might see," said his uncle uneasily. "The estate is just about as involved and mixed up as an estate can well get, to the best of my knowledge. You ought to have that deed."

"No, don't bother him."

"I'll bother him as little as possible. I'll wait till some day when he seems to brighten up a little."

But Amberson waited too long. The Major had already taken eleven months since his daughter's death to think important things out. One evening his grandson sat with him—the Major seemed to like best to have young George with him, so far as they were able to guess his preferences—and the old gentleman made a queer gesture; he slapped his knee as if he had made a sudden discovery, or else remembered that he had forgotten something.

George looked at him with an air of inquiry, but said nothing. He had grown to be almost as silent as his grandfather. However, the Major spoke without being questioned.

"It must be in the sun," he said. "There wasn't anything here, but the sun in the first place, and the earth came out of the sun, and we came out of the earth. So, whatever we are, we must have been in the sun. We go back to the earth we came out of so the earth will go back to the sun that it came out of. And time means nothing—nothing at all—so in a little while we'll all be back in the sun together. I wish—"

He moved his hand uncertainly as if reaching for something, and George jumped up. "Did you want anything, grandfather?"

"What?"

"Would you like a glass of water?"

"No—no. No; I don't want anything." The reaching hand dropped back up on the arm of his chair, and he re-apsed into silence; but a few minutes later he finished the sentence he had begun:

"I wish—somebody could tell me!"

The next day he had a slight cold, but he seemed annoyed when his son suggested calling the doctor, and Amberson let him have his own way so far, in fact, that after he had got up and dressed, the following morning, he was all alone when he went away to find out what he hadn't been able to think out—all those things he had wished "somebody" would tell him.

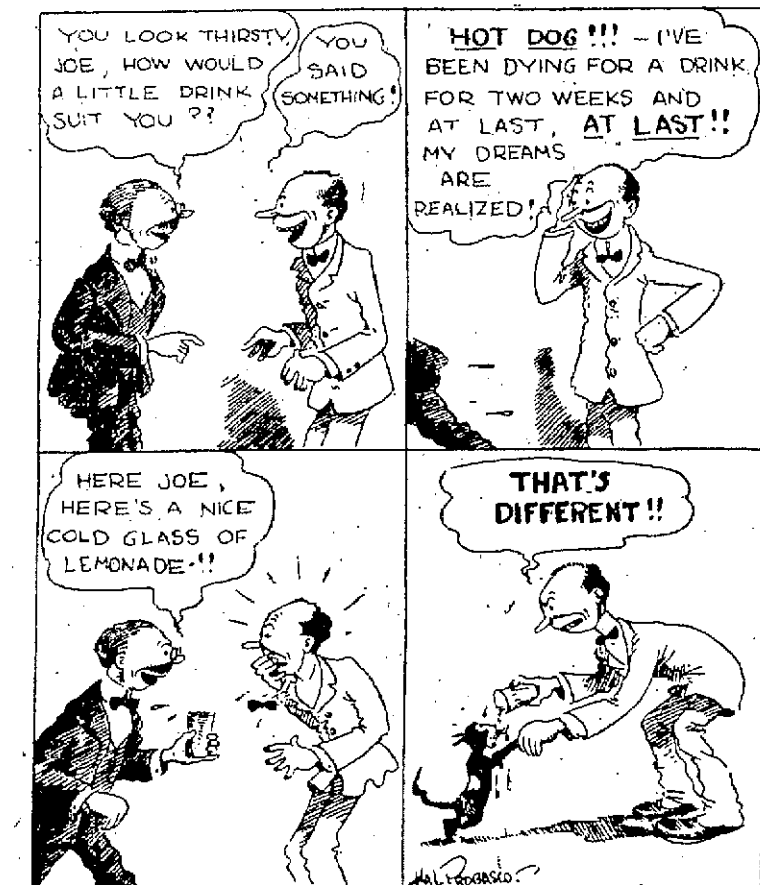

Old Sam, shuffling in with the breakfast tray, found the Major in his accustomed easy-chair by the fireplace—and yet even the old darkey could see instantly that the Major was not there.

CHAPTER XX.

When the great Amberson estate went into court for settlement, "there wasn't any," George Amberson said—that is, when the settlement was concluded there was no estate. He reproached himself bitterly for not having long ago discovered that his father had never given Isabel a deed to her house. "And those pigs, Sydney and Amelia!" he added, for this was another thing he was bitter about. "They won't do anything. I'm sorry I gave them the opportunity of making a polished refusal. The estate was badly crippled, even before they took out their 'third,' and the 'third' they took was the only good part of the rotten apple. Well, I don't ask them for restitution on my own account, and at least it will save you some trouble, young George. Never waste any time writing to them; you mustn't count on them."

"I don't," George said quietly. "I don't count on anything."

REUNITED AFTER SEVEN YEARS' SEPARATION

New York.—Seven years ago Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wibel were divorced. Their little son thought daddy was a traveling man, because he only saw father once a week. In coming to see his son Wibel often met his divorced wife. They gradually resumed a friendship which reawakened the old love. A few days ago they agreed to let by-gone be by-gone and were married again. Now little Arthur, Jr., has a daddy just like other little fellows have.

THE WISHING PLANE

Although the children had had many delightful days in Switzerland they never had been high up on the mountains where ice and snow covered everything. So they were more than tickled when Captain Brave told them he had arranged to take them up.

"How are we going to get there?" asked Jack.

"Why, in the airplane, of course," answered the captain. Then he told the children how he had talked with a man in the village nearby who knew the mountains well and could point out a great flat space near the top of one of them where the airplane could be landed.

"And he is going along with us, to show me the place and tell you all about things way up there," added the captain.

So, after what seemed like weeks to Jack and Jane, but was really only another day, the trip to the mountain top was made. The Swiss mountain guide came early. He was a little fellow, but very strong as the children found when he helped them into the plane. His name was Lamar, and the children soon learned that he spent most of his time leading parties of folks from other countries in mountain-climbing trips.

You know, many tourists—folks who travel most of the time—go to Switzerland to climb the beautiful but difficult mountains. Without someone who knows the mountains to lead them they would become lost and possibly lose their lives. The guides, who can be hired for so much a day, lead the way up the mountain sides; teach the visitors how to climb, how to use their Alpine stocks, long sticks they carry, how to steer them away from the rocky pieces of ice and snow which might break loose from the mountain sides and hurt them down to the valley below and kill them.

Lamar was one of these men.

On the short trip to the landing place Lamar pointed out to the children a little group of people climbing slowly up one of the peaks. The children noticed that they walked, one behind the other and that a strong rope ran from one man to the next and was tied around each man's body.

"The man leading them is the guide," said Lamar. "I think it's Ralfo. He was going to take a party out today. He's one of the best mountaintainers around this part of Switzerland."

"You see, there are many little peaks around each mountain below the highest peak. If the tourists tried to climb to the highest one without anyone to lead them they would get a dozen of the little peaks without getting near the main one. Then there are a lot of crevasses, we call them to cross. They are great big cracks in the mountain or in the ice that covers the upper parts of it. The guide picks out the safe place for crossing these great cracks. Sometimes it is hundreds of feet to the bottom of these holes and anyone who fell over the edge would be killed, of course."

Lamar stopped talking to the children while he pointed out the way to Captain Brave. When he finished talking said at once:

"Do tell us more about mountain climbing." So he did. But you all have to wait until tomorrow to hear what else he said.

The Fordson is More Than a Tractor

Fordson Tractor $750 f. o. b. factory

It has proven such an economical, efficient, durable tractor that it pays for itself within a few months time if used only for plowing, discing, harrowing and other field work.

But the Fordson is more than a Tractor. It is an economical, powerful, portable power plant that will drive any kind of belt-driven farm implement.

For filling the silo—grinding feed—sawing wood for winter fuel—everywhere on the farm, every day in the year, there are jobs for this wonderful portable power plant.

The powerful Fordson engine delivers 22 horse-power at 1000 revolutions per minute, which is ample power to do any work on the farm.

Don't think of the Fordson merely as a Tractor—think of it as a durable, efficient, portable power unit that not only replaces six or more horses in field work, but also replaces the stationary gasoline engine, besides doing scores of jobs that have formerly been done by hand.

Come in and let us show you why this tractor has proven such a remarkable success—why farmers are buying them by thousands every month. You will be interested in learning how we handle Fordson service.

I took every kind of medicine that was recommended to me, without benefit, until I got a bottle of Number 40, and it helped me so much that I got two more bottles, and since taking the second bottle I am feeling fine. I wish to recommend Number 40 to anyone needing a blood medicine as I believe it is as good as recommended. Mrs. ne Goodwin, Gileston, Mo." Number 40 demanded in depraved condition of the system, especially of the liver and general health. In chronic condition of the spleen or liver, making it impossible to keep. Remedies of disease by stimulation of waste, thus enervation. Employed with blood troubles, chronic urticaria, eczema and skin diseases. J. C. Mendenhall, years a druggist, Drug Co.

GRAIN
Chicago Review.
Chicago, Aug. 28.—A growing conviction that the agitation against the high cost of living is achieving results was reflected today on the board of trade, in lower prices for grains and provisions.
Weakness of live hog prices which showed another decline was also a contributing factor in the early trading.
Corn opened from 1 1/4 to 2 1/4 lower, the December delivery leading in the decline. Prices for grain were narrowly traded, with a tendency to steady as observed.
Opening prices were September 1.77 1/2 to 1.78 and December 1.35 1/2 to 1.37.
Oats moved downward with corn, though the decline was within narrow limits. Liquidating sales and pressure from local traders were evident, though there was moderate buying.
September on the break and elevator interests increasing its holdings. Opening prices were 3 1/2 to 3 1/2 lower, and December at 7 1/2 to 7 1/2. In the early hours the market sagged somewhat below the opening figures.
Provisions fell off sharply at the start. September pork declined on September 25.00 to 24.75, and De-

Shake-up In Shore League Standings Is Predicted By Fans

By George McManus.

SIX GAMES IN TWO DAYS IS PROGRAM

A grand shake-up in the standings in the Lake Shore league will probably be the result of the big Sunday and Labor Day programs, six of the most important games of the season being listed for those two consecutive days. Because of activities at the fair grounds in preparation for the fair which opens Monday, the games will split up over both days.

Sunday they will run up to Waupun to battle the cellar champions. The Princeton outfit is noted for the surprises it has been springing on strong teams lately and a victory for that club would not be unexpected. How the Janesville team will be reinforced at the fair grounds is a matter of conjecture and also of some cash speculation.

Shelbygan On Monday

On the following day, Labor Day, the Janesville team will meet the Shelbygan team at the fair grounds. The Shelbygan team is in second place and a victory for Janesville would mean much more than a boosted percentage. It will be the Janesville team's first trip to the northern shore towns and the result of the expedition will be awaited with interest here.

The Shelbygan sluggers, who are struggling as they never did before, for the highest honors in the Shore league, will go to the South Side park in Milwaukee, Sunday afternoon to try conclusions with Jack Litzke's rejuvenated Kosciusko team which last Sunday defeated the Janesville, 12 to 2. The new additions of the Kosciusko machine and especially the signing of Harvey Stock to do the mound work makes them look like a genuine ball club and a victory over the Chairs is predicted. Jack McCoy will take his All Stars to Manitowish Sunday, where they hope to trip up the leading Herzogs.

McCoy's vs. Manitowish

Hank Schultz, who pitched the Janesville to a 2 to 1 victory over Albany, Tuesday, is the man whom the McCoy's figure can pull the unexpected.

Labor day both the McCoy's and Kosciusko will play on the road. The Poles are scheduled to play at Manitowish, while the Stars will travel to Waupun. Negotiations are under way to stage a regular game between the Waupun and McCoy's on Labor day morning. The contest would be fought on the prison grounds for the benefit of the prisoners. In the afternoon the two teams are billed to meet at the city park.

STARS HAVE HEAVY THREE-GAME PROGRAM

Three games in three days is the heavy program of the All-Stars over the coming week-end, and in order to carry out the bill a new and in a pitcher—Mabson—will be signed. The Stars will invade Orlinville to play the last of a three-game series with the village club. The Stars were victorious in each of the two games played in this series and are out to win the third straight. A stiff workout is on the docket for Friday night in preparation for the three games.

Sunday they will job to Beloit to clinch with the Junior Fairies, while Monday they will play either Stoughton or Evansville. Hager will leave against Orlinville, while Black will do the heavy Sunday, with Mabson to carry the burden Monday.

Stoughton, a new man, is slated to catch Saturday in Crowley's absence. Marko will be on first and Brock at second in Saturday's game. Monday, but McGhee will be on the mound at the Stoughton game. Graesslin at third and Fueselman at short will play the three games, while Babcock, Zahn and Wall will make up the invincible outfield.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Game Pacer With Record Of 159 1/2 to Race at State Fair

Wisconsin lovers of the harness horse keenly regret the accident that befell Ed. Allen, the famous driver of Single G., 1:59 1/2. Allen had his leg broken in an accident while racing, and will be unable to pilot Single G. at the Wisconsin State Fair, just when he will handle the reins behind this space destroyer in Milwaukee has not been determined as yet by W. B. Barefoot, the owner of Single G.

Ed. Allen had long been recognized as one of the leading money winners in the harness racing business. He had won a record of 2:12 1/2 over a half-mile track. He started eight times, winning four races and being second in the other four.

SAMSON-PARKER GAME, SECOND OF SERIES, IS BOOKED FOR SATURDAY

Samson rooters are counting on their team to come through with a victory over the Parker Pen crew in the second game of the post-league series Saturday afternoon. The game will be staged at the Samson park instead of at the fair grounds. Hostilities of the first game last Saturday will be renewed promptly at three o'clock.

If the rubber turners knock off another victory Saturday then the series will be brought to a close, but a win for the boys at the big plant will mean the necessity of a third and deciding game. According to advance dope the Samsonies are due to win this week, but the great Parker Pen team is going to be hard downing.

The batteries for the game have not been announced. Fire will probably pitch again for the pennant, while Ed will possibly be secured to leave for the shop gang. Fox, famous short-stop, will be back in uniform for the game and this fact is making the Tractors look like the real thing this week.

2,700 SEE FAIRIES TRIM FOOTVILLE, 11-2

A crowd of 2,700 people saw the Beloit Fairies toy with the Footville White Sox at the Evansville celebration yesterday. It was a one-sided exhibition, the final score being, Fairies 11, Footville 2. Mayor E. H. Libby of Evansville umpired the affair.

Rose started in the box for the Fairies but when it was found the game was going to be an easy one, Baxter, and several of the rest of the team took a try on the rubber. Lentz pitched a good game for the losers.

Soldiers to Parade.

Shelbygan.—The victory Labor day parade will be featured with the appearance of more than a thousand soldiers and sailors, released from service.

PRINCE ALBERT

SAY, you'll have a streak of smokeluck that'll put pep-in-your-smokemotor, all right, if you'll ring-in with a jimmy pipe or cigarette papers and nail some Prince Albert for packing!

Just between ourselves, you never will wise-up to high-spot-smoke-joy until you can call a pipe by its first name, then, to hit the peak-of-pleasure you land square on that two-fisted-man-tobacco, Prince Albert!

Well, sir, you'll be so all-fired happy you'll want to get a photograph of yourself breezing up the pike with your smokethrottle wide open! Talk about smoke-sport! Quality makes Prince Albert so appealing all along the smoke line. Men who never before could smoke a pipe and men who've smoked pipes for years all testify to the delight it hands out! P. A. can't bite or parch! Both are cut out by our exclusive patented process!

Right now while the going's good you get out your old jimmy pipe or the papers and land on some P. A. for what ails your particular smokeappetite!

Correct Lubrication Adds Life and Power to Your Tractor

YOUR tractor represents a large investment which must be protected. You can protect it best by care in the selection of the lubricants used to eliminate friction from the moving parts. By using the correct oil you not only increase the life of your machine, but you add to its power, for much power is used in overcoming friction.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) manufacturers three lubricating oils for tractors.

Heavy Polarine Oil

Stanolind Tractor Oil

Extra Heavy Polarine Oil

One of these oils has the correct lubricating body for your particular tractor. The nearest Standard Oil representative has a chart, prepared by our Engineering Staff, indicating which of these oils will enable your tractor to give the best results, and he will be glad to show it to you.

Write for 100-page book "Tractor Lubrication." It is free and will be of great interest and usefulness to you. Read it carefully, apply the information given, and you will be able to keep your tractor in service longer.
